Personal.

INFORMATION is wanted as to the whereabouts of Mr. PATRICK KING, who when last heard from was in the employ of the C. P. R. at Port Moody in the capacity of Bridge Carpenter. Some 18 or 20 months ago a rumor reached his friends in New York State that he, with a number of other workmen, were quarantined for small pox at Port Moody. He was formerly a resident of Brockport, Monroe County, New York. Since that time, 18 or 20 months since, his friends have received no tidings from him. Any person knowing anything of his whereabouts will relieve a widowed mother's anxiety for an absent son by communicating such information to the TIMES office, Victoria, or to R. A BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

Grand Ball at Marlborough House—The Costumes Described.

A Thousand Guests Entertained by the Prince and Princess of Wales.

The London correspondent of the New York Herald in his cable letter of the 21st inst., states that while the Queen is cabinet making at Osborne several members of the retiring cabinet are enjoying themselves at a ball at Marlborough House. To this the Queen contributed her "weather," which favors an immense crowd. Masses are in Pall Mall, St. James, around the old palace and in the park, facing one side of the residence of the future King. Queen's weather, with bright moonlight, also favors the royal garden, which is lit up in a fairy like manner with miniature lamps of many shapes and all hues, that really rival the moonbeams. These lamps sparkle among the trees, shrubs and flowers like rubies. Carpets cover all the alleyways and paths, transforming the garden into an open air drawing room. Nearly a thousand guests entered the house, either from the entrance in Pall Mall or from the park.

MARLBOROUGH HOUSE

is a large, square mansion of red brick, almost as unpretentious as the old New York hotel at Washington place. The guests began to arrive at 10 o'clock. The ladies enter through porches to their toilet rooms on the same floor, where abound maids, pincushions, needlebooks and powder puffs. A few gentlemen bring overcoats. All wear levee dress, but the cloak rooms are crowded. As they arrive from these preparatory chambers the guests are passed on toward a large square hall, where their Royal Highnesses receive them. Next they take a "go as you please," or rather go as you can walk through the various reception rooms, on to the grand ball room, and into the fairy like garden, for enjoying which the night air is fortunately warm. Very little furniture is about, the etiquette forbids any but surreptitious seating away from the garden chairs. At midnight the outside throngs had disappeared, but many of the "masses" seated in the park continued to enjoy the delightful music for the "classes" that in the still night could be heard as far as Buckingham palace on one side and the long line of clubs on the other side.

THE COSTUMES.

Airy dresses of tulle, principally, of course, white, and of that favorite material point d'esprit, pr dominated for debutantes and maidens. Matrons affect brocades in the Pompadour pattern, or crepe de Chine, or cut crystals, glittering like precious stones, or—not to forget—mother of pearl embroidery. All the dresses after midnight more or less showed evidences of the crush inside the ball room or within the garden. The refreshment tent was wealthy in ices, out of compliment of the mercury, of course. The toilet of the Princess of Wales, as the hostess, was the first object of everyone's notice. She is wearing a very lovely dress of pale ciel blue Lyons velvet, an over jupon of blue satin veiled in crepe, embroidered in pearls and caught in the drapery with pale blue ostrich feathers, the bodice pas lier, with embroidered crepe and tufts of feathers, diamonds and pearl ornaments. The somewhat current that she purposely unbecomingly arrays her daughter Louise was palpably contradicted to-night, for the latter's dress was remarkable for its exquisite shade—just the color of a blush rose—the petticoat tulle, several, one over the other, over a faille Francaise, looped with bouquets of pink flowers, shading from blush to almost scarlet. The bodice, of satin broche, had a trimming of tulle and a bouquet de corsage of flowers. The Princess Mary of Teck presented a remarkable toilet, which, while it may be admired for its beauty, was just the color to make the wearer's figure appear larger than its wont. It was a shaded gray velvet and satin brocade, in paler gray, trimmed with flounces of fine old point lace, looped with scarlet poppies of silk and plush, with the foliage shaded green. To differentiate the other gorgeous toilets would consume too much space in a cable dispatch, but there may be mentioned for its beauty a dress worn by a lady of the French embassy. It was a light silver of silk, petticoat in white silver tulle, with draperies over faille looped with white ostrich aigrettes; corsage of white and silver brocade, trimmed to correspond. Also a dress of mauve velvet and tulle, covered in with white silver drops, looped with bouquets of mauve, lilac and pink roses, bodice of mauve velvet, trimmed to match.

POLITICAL BADGES.

Some silver thistles worn by many ladies in the hair were understood to be quiet Gladstone badges, while some dancers of Primrose habitations, wore, yet not ostentatiously, hair pins, headed with a primrose set in pearls. The music was furnished by the string band of the Royal Artillery. The gentlemen largely preponderated over the ladies, which is not usual. After midnight a cool breeze springing up increased the number of dancers in the ballroom, which was principally surrendered to young couples, while the elderlies—from dukes and marquises to knights and messieurs—haunted the garden, especially the large tent. After midnight also the Prince and Princess democratically mingled with the guests in every part. Among the diplomatic corps Minister Phelps looked like anything else than bothering his head with preparing an agreement to submit to the Queen, embodying the American view of the fishery question.

CAUGHT IN A NET.

A curious accident occurred to the steamer Evangel on her last trip between Seattle and Vancouver. She left Seattle last Monday morning and should have returned on Wednesday, but while moving up the Fraser river on the first mentioned day to New Westminster, her propeller wheel became entangled in a fish net, causing that valuable power to become useless. The result was the craft lay in the river until Wednesday night before the tide went down so the net could be taken off.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD'S HAPPY UTTERANCES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—In justice to the above statesman, and the large number of workingmen who reside in the province, and have suffered from Chinese competition, I think it would be opportune for Sir John to explain the nature of the influence brought to bear on him in the preference made by his government to that class of labor almost to the exclusion of his own race. It would only be just for him to explain how Canada, with four and a half millions of people, and an expanse of country much larger than that of New Zealand, and not one-third of the distance of that country from Great Britain, could not afford to import white labor equally as well as New Zealand, which did so under such extraordinary disadvantages in comparison with those of Canada. The Underdonk contract was let at higher figures than any other of the same class on the American continent. The truck system was tolerated to the disadvantage of local tradesmen. The country during construction was unfavorable to white settlement, thousands of fine, able-bodied men left the province in disgust, never to return. When the road was completed there was not the evidence of a single town, worthy of name, built as a result of the so-called public works policy. To-day the only realization of the expenditure of close upon thirty millions of dollars is a line of rails intended more for Imperial military purposes than those of a commercial character, i.e., taking the remarks of leading statesmen on the subject. Such are the inferences to be deducted therefrom. Sensible workingmen in this province have never considered Chinese labor a necessity for the construction of public works. Sixty dollars per head would have brought the best navvies, in Great Britain which would have been perferential to $40 per head for Chinese. Most of the money paid for labor would have been expended in the country, either in extravagance or in the promotion of settlement. East as well as West would have been benefited thereby. It would be an injustice to the intelligent champions of labor in the East who have battled in the interests of their fellow sufferers in this province to allow either Sir John, or themselves, to think that the complaints which surged through every manly breast in this province were not well founded, and in fact never had a material existence.

WORKING MAN.

GHASTLY DISCOVERY.

A Man's Foot Found in a Boot Near Vancouver City.

On Thursday afternoon, says the Vancouver News, an extraordinary discovery was made by Wood who is employed at Lamey's saw mill across False Creek. While walking up the hill some 300 feet from the shore of the creek alongside a rivulet which is quite shallow he noticed a boot lying on the bank. It proved to be a miner's boot, size No. 8. Mr. Wood took up the boot and noticing something projecting out of the top, cut into the leather, and to his surprise and horror discovered that in the boot was in an advanced stage of decomposition. The spot where the boot was discovered is close to the trail which leads to English Bay. The boot with its ghastly remains was in the Relief Committee room last night, and was shown to a News reporter by the chief of police. On pushing aside the leather, the foot, which had been severed from the leg just below the ankle, is plainly apparent, its shape being perfectly natural. A portion of the leg is attached to it. Marks of wild animals' teeth can be seen, the creature having evidently fastened its teeth in the leather and attempted to draw out the human remains. The Chief spent several hours yesterday afternoon and evening in the locality where the boot was found, hoping that some light might be thrown upon the mystery which at present baffles all explanation. Whether has been committed is not known. The man may have been camping out in the woods at night time and been attacked by a wild beast while asleep. The neighborhood around where the discovery was made is very lonely, and the cries of any one being murdered or attacked would notreach the ears of human beings. Cougars and bears are quite common in thelocality of the discovery, and within thepast month was observed by some loggers roaming around. From the appearance of the leather and the decayed condition of the flesh, the Chief is of the opinion that the boot has been exposed to the air for about two or three months, though it is very difficult to form any very decided opinion on the subject.

AN IMMENSE COUGAR

VICTORIA TO WINNIPEG.

What a Victorian Thinks of the C. P. R. as a Route and Winnipeg as a City.

A prominent Victorian writing to a friend in this city says: We arrived here (Winnipeg) on time, and every west going train met us at the siding, and at the time appointed.

There have been fires in the mountains, but they are clearing the space which must be cleared on either side of the track.

We had some times grand sights at nights. The woods on top of the highest mountains were on fire—a splendid sight to behold, but quite harmless.

All the passengers said they never crossed the continent with so much comfort as on the C. P. R. line.

The crops about Winnipeg and for many, many scores of miles west, look splendid.

This town of Winnipeg is rising from its dream, and piles of buildings worthy of New York or London are rising on what was considered to be a "played out" town. It must become the Chicago of Canada as Vancouver its San Francisco.

THE TEA SHIP.

It was expected that the cargo of tea of the W. B. Flint would all be unloaded and started on its eastern journey early next week. Fifteen men employed by Stevedore York quit work on Thursday morning, tired of the job, which was a kind of work to which they were unused. Other men were engaged at Vancouver to take their places. The trains carrying this tea to the east will, it is said, make express time.

GOSNELL'S SUGAR CURED HAMS

IN FOURTEEN DAYS.

From Liverpool to Esquimalt by Admiralty Messengers.

The Federal Union of British North America.

The St. James Gazette, in a recent editorial under this heading, says: What has not been inaptly described as "Canada's contribution to the organization and defence of the Empire," is now an accomplished fact. The first through train on the Canadian Pacific Railway has left Montreal for the Pacific coast—an event the full significance of which can hardly be realized as yet. The opening of this railway throughout its entire length gives to the federal union of British North America a practical reality which it never before possessed. It furnishes a new and important Imperial highway to the far East;

AN ALTERNATIVE MILITARY ROUTE to India quite as expeditious as that round the Cape, and less precarious than by way of the Suez Canal, because wholly British. The Canadian Pacific is really an interoceanic line; for it is already connected with Halifax, Nova Scotia, by the Intercolonial Railway, and will next year connected with the same port by another and shorter line, direct from Montreal through the State of Maine. It will thus be equally serviceable as a connecting link between this country and Eastern Asia both from a mercantile and military point of view. Gigantic as will be the task of working and administering a railway nearly 3000 miles in length, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company contemplate more than this. They are establishing a regular line of steamers in the North Pacific in connection with their railway, and are also getting special steamers built for the Transatlantic mail service between this country and Halifax. To understand what this means, we have only to grasp the fact that they intend to carry mails and passengers from Liverpool to Hongkong in twenty-six days! This will put it in the power of any one with money and leisure enough to beat the record of Jules Verne's hero with the greatest ease. Some conception of the achievement, from an engineering point of view, may be gathered from the fact that within a stretch of three hundred miles no fewer than four mountain ranges—namely, the Rocky Mountains proper, the Selkirk range, the Columbia or Gold range, and the Cascade Mountains—had to be crossed by the railway. The Selkirk range in the latitude of the railway had never hitherto been crossed by man, and the Indians knew of no pass through it. In the Century Magazine, a few months ago, Dr. Grant narrated the romantic circumstances in which the Eagle Pass was discovered by an engineer of the mountain division of the Canadian Pacific Railway only four years ago. Perhaps the most remarkable engineering feature of the whole railway is a bridge on the eastern slope of the Selkirks. It is 400 feet long and passes over a chasm which is 280 feet from the bridge to the bottom.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

passes over the Rockies at an altitude of over 5000 feet; and just at the summit, towering 6,700 feet above the level of the railway tract, there is a peak with an immense glacier upon it. The last spike was driven in the Canadian Pacific Railway in November last; and although the first regular through-train from the east of the line to the Pacific terminus only started yesterday, railway supplies and other goods have been regularly carried for some time past. It is not without significance that the first goods train which ever passed over the road all the way through to the Pacific terminus carried stores and munitions from Her Majesty's dockyards for the Imperial naval station at Esquimalt, Vancouver Island.

If a struggle a outrance were ever to take place between England and Russia, the existence of this railway communication would lead to Vancouver Island being a place d'armes like and from thence operations against the Amoor Provinces could be carried on. Esquimalt is some four months' steaming distance from England, yet it is now possible for an Admiralty messenger to carry dispatches there in fourteen days without once being outside of British jurisdiction. As we have already said, part of the scheme contemplated by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is to establish a line of first class steamers to run between the Pacific terminus and Japan and China; and definite proposals are at present before the government with regard to the mail service between this country and those parts of Asia by the Canadian route. The commercial advantages which the Canadian Pacific Railway can offer are considerable. From Liverpool to the Pacific seaboard by that way is 821 miles less than from Liverpool to San Francisco; and from Liverpool to Yokohama by the same route is only 10,977 miles, while by San Francisco it is 11,990.

THE FASTEST IN THE WORLD.

In Montreal it is reported that Sir Donald Smith and Mr. Angus, of the Canadian Pacific, who are at present in London, are promoting a movement by the Canadian Pacific directors for the establishment of a faster fleet of steamers than the Allan or Dominion lines, to carry mails between Canada and England, for five years, after April next, and for making their through route via the Atlantic and the Pacific to the east, the fastest in the world.

A MODEL YOUNG MAN.

From private parties in this city we learn that Sergt. Robt. Plummer is making a splendid record for himself. He is considered the best all-round man in the Canadian Artillery team. The letter was written on board of the steamship Vancouver at sea, on which steamer the team embarked a short time ago for Shoeburyness, Eng.

CHAMBLY ELECTION.

Defeat of the Government Candidate—A Test Contest.

MONTREAL, July 31.—The Dominion election contest yesterday in the County of Chambly, opposite this city, resulted in the election of Ald. Prefontaine, Liberal, over Jodoin, Conservative, by a majority of 45. Major Chagnon, who made such a startling speech in reference to the questionable conduct of gentlemen in the various departments with females employed therein, wisely withdrew. The contest was a bitter one, the contending factions using their best endeavors to elect their ticket. At last election Mr. Bendit, the late member, who retired, having accepted a clerkship, had a majority of 539, the vote being 822 to 283. Yesterday's election was regarded as a test one in the province of Quebec, and unmistakeably indicates a decided change of fealty towards the Blue leaders from this province, Sirs Hector Langevin, A. P. Caron and Hon. Mr. Chapleau. The opinion is general on the streets today that the Rouges will sweep the province at next election.

The local elections will now be hurried on at once, in order to relieve the tension on the public mind and allow business to proceed immediately.

The vote polled in Chambly on Friday would have been larger had the election taken place under the new franchise act. There is great excitement over the result throughout the provinces and at the capital. It is claimed by the defeated party that if Sir John had been in Ottawa the result would have been otherwise.

THE FISHERIES.

Hon. Mr. Foster's Visit to the Maritime Provinces—Satisfactory Results.

OTTAWA, July 31.—During his visits to the maritime provinces Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, spent his time mainly in a personal investigation of the complex fisheries question in the Bay of Fundy. As a result of the investigation several measures will at once be put into operation for the more thorough enforcement of the law on that body of water. The New Brunswick and Maine people of the maritime provinces are loud in their praises of the vigorous and efficient policy of the government. Mackerel have been plenty, and with little exception have kept close in-shore. The United States schooners give the Canadian cruisers a wide berth. The purchase of bait and supplies has been effectually stopped and no transshipment of cargoes has been allowed.

UP IN A BALLOON.

Cherbourg to London—The Channel Crossed in a Balloon.

LONDON, July 30.—The balloon Torpilleur which is fitted with a patent steering and propelling apparatus, and in which aeronaut, L. Hoste, and astronomer, Margot, ascended from Cherbourg, France, at 11 o'clock last evening, descended in London at 6 o'clock this morning. The navigators will return to Cherbourg and will attempt a voyage from that place to Norway.

A HEAVY MAIL ROBBERY.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—It is just learned that the postal car which left New York for St. Louis, June 28, had among its mail pouches for St. Louis, which contained about $20,000 in money and drafts, bonds, checks and other valuable papers, and property valued at $80,000. At Pittsburg the far west mails was transferred and passed into the hands of chief clerk, Jas. Ferald. The train, as usual, made a very short stop at that place and also, as usual, the chief clerk signed a receipt for the various pouches without inspecting them, the time being too short to do so. During the run to Indianapolis he found that he had receipted for the St. Louis pouch, which was not in his possession, and which probably had not been turned over to him with the rest of the mail. He immediately reported a robbery. Detectives have been working on the case ever since without having made any arrests. It is believed the pouches were stolen between New York and Pittsburg by one or a number of the clerks who have since then left the service.

A TREMENDOUS EXPLOSION.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 31.—At 3:15 this morning a tremendous explosion, the shock of which was distinctly felt in this city, occurred at St. Clair, two miles in the distance. Dynamite had been placed under the Baptist church and exploded, wrecking the building and entailing damage to the amount of several hundred dollars. The perpetrators have not been discovered, but the act is universally regarded as the result of the crusade of the law and order society, through whose efforts Daniel Walker, and old an respected citizen was recently imprisoned for a technical violation of the liquor law, and who died in a short time since; his death being generally attributed to his imprisonment. Some six months ago the store of an active member of the society was blown up and the excitement, and bad blood occasioned by that demonstration, has been raised to fever heat by the subsequent events resulting in this morning's outrage.

WITHDRAWN IN DISGUST.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—At a meeting of the Federation of Trades last night the iron moulders union withdrew in a body from the organization. Their principal reason was dissatisfaction with the rules and regulations of the Federation.

AUSTRALIANS BEATEN.

LONDON, July 31.—The Surrey eleven played a match game at cricket to-day with the Australian team. The Australians were beaten by one innings and 200 runs.

HEAVY BOOT AND SHOE FAILURE.

LONDON, July 31.—The shoe factory of Stead, Simpson & Co., Leicester, is destroyed by fire, loss $250,000. Fifteen hundred persons are thrown out of employment.

GRANITE CITY NEWS.

State of Trade in the Camp—Some of the Pioneers.

The Great Danger of Asking a Man to Take a Drink.

Work in the mines continues as usual, claims on the creek producing fairly on an average. Business in town may have improved in a slight degree, but as yet the change is hardly perceptible to the naked eye. One may still walk the streets without being run over or crowded much. Still

MANY MEN ARE IDLE.

It is expected soon that more hands will be put on the night shifts. We always have a large floating population and among so many people, gathered as they are, from all quarters of the globe, there are necessarily some eccentric characters. Most prominent among those whose histories have unusual interest for an observer of human nature, is the patriarch of the camp and the oldest of all old timers, and who is well known in most places in this country. He is the only perfectly independent man in camp, and accepts favors from no one. At his time of life, (about ninety years), men usually think about settling down to a quiet life. Not so Old Dad. As he is thoroughly disgusted with this camp he will start for Alaska, which he knows to be a good mining country. Although he is a bona fide miner, he plays the violin for his own amusement when times are dull, and still keeps the old fiddle that he has packed on all his travels from Caribou to Big Bend, Cassiar, &c. He makes his headquarters at the Adelphi, where he often entertains the boys. The ancient man, with his ancient fiddle, playing still more ancient airs, attracts many curious observers. Next on the list is

"CRUMMIE."

There is a legend that he is a scion of English nobility. He was cast away in this country years ago, and has since lived in many different places. Out of his small income from the old country he maintains the role of a general philanthropist. He is camped across the river, where he entertains, right royally, a coterie of choice spirits, and they "fleet the time merrily as in the golden world." For them this is not a "working-day world." This "Forest of Arden" contains no such contentment as theirs. This article would not be complete without mention of the

"BIG KID."

The appellation of kid may mean various things now-a-days, but as applied to the human species it is very indefinite what the real meaning is. We have had with us the "Crooked kid," the "Running kid," the "Hoo Doo kid," &c., but the one worthy of special mention is the "Big Kid," a stalwart giant, who is an ideal miner out of Bret Harte's stories, to outward appearance. But if you pick the kid up for a miner he will fool you. He runs a pack train. His eccentricity lies in the matter of dress. He has an aversion to the style and texture of the clothing of the present day, and so still wears the pants and hat he brought from Canada in 1854. (The kid is no tender-foot.) In 1878 he invested in a new shirt, but further than that he will not pander to the frivolities of changing fashion. He keeps a tight hold on the dollars, and it is supposed that he has a big wad cashed away against rainy weather. To pass on to the remarkable and long continued dullness of the times causes the saloon man to cast sorrowful glances at his depleted stock and empty till, and the long accounts on the Dr. side of the slate. Even when a man does come in to spend four bits, it is with a deprecating sign that the bar-keeper sets out the bottle, for well he knows that half a dozen thirsty watchers will respond and drink up the profits. Charlie Ashton, one night, had been waiting wearily, for a solemn man to finish a tedious article in the Colonist, so that he could shut up and go to bed. Time dragged along and still the melancholy man held it down till Charlie, losing all patience, exclaimed: "O! for goodness sake come take a drink, I want to close up." "Don't carefido," said the man coming forward. But Charlie had raised his voice too loud, a passer-by heard the invitation and made

A BREAK FOR THE BAR.

Some one saw him and hurried after with two or three friends. Men from up and down the street seeing the hurried rush into the place, ran to see the excitement and so in a moment's time it became known that something had happened, and there began a general stampede. Charlie stood behind his bar as twenty-five or thirty crowded in. "O! come off you fellows" said he, "if you expect me to gin up this crowd you're left." Great guns! Can't a man treat a friend without the whole town taking advantage of it?" By this time the multitude filled the place and reached far up and down the street. "Well, if this ain't a holy terror," yelled Charlie growing very lax in the collar. "I'll be teetotally ——." (Cheers.) "You fellows must take us for a political mass meeting or a socialistic riot" (loud applause). "The idea, by Jove! that I can't treat one man without bringing down such a howling mob as this! It makes me sick." (Three cheers and a tiger from the crowd.) "Now, you fellows get out of here or I'll have the police." And Chas. soon succeeded in clearing the place and next morning he indignantly left for "up the creek."

MR. JOHNNY O'DONNEL,

after a brief vacation, has resumed his position behind the bar of the Adelphi. Too close application to business had begun to tell on his health, but he appears as skookum as ever now.

MR. CAMERON,

the real estate man, is a most indefatigable fisherman. He never neglects a chance of going after the minnies. He lashes the streams to a foam in all directions and is often seen after a long day's angling, packing home a string of trout, some of them exceeding four inches in length. JERRY.

Granite City, July 23, 1886.

EXPOSED.

The grave of a French woman in the cemetery is so much uncovered as to expose the coffin. Mayor Fell's attention has been called to the circumstance, and he will have it properly covered.

TWO MEN DIE.

NANAIMO, July 31.—A. Robes, one of the men who was burned in the explosion on the Queen of the Pacific, died at 3 o'clock this morning. Another named J. Kade died this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Grave fears are entertained for the recovery of the others.

ONLY OUR RIGHTS.

Hon. Thomas White has been addressing the people of Victoria, British Columbia, and doubtless they will appreciate the glowing eloquence of the hon. gentleman, which deals with the advantages of the Canadian Pacific Railway in a three-column-and-a-half report. The British Columbians have now the speech to con over, but what is better, they have the railway, daily doing more than all the cabinet ministers can ever do to testify to the sacrifices which Eastern Canada has made to retain the Pacific Province. If a growl, pitched in the faintest key, be ever heard from over the Rockies during the next century, it will mean that British Columbia wants the earth.—Ottawa Evening Journal, Conservative.

British Columbia has not asked the Dominion for a solitary favor. Our just rights are what we shall always demand and insist upon receiving. But as a mendicant we shall never knock at the door of the Federal treasury. Canada has a rich inheritance in her Pacific Coast possessions, which demand attention at her hands. In the development of the latent resources of British Columbia the entire Dominion is interested. Hitherto we have been to a certain degree in a state of isolation from the other provinces. Now that we are encircled by the iron girdle spanning the continent from ocean to ocean the condition of affairs which existed for so many years, to the detriment of British Columbia's advancement, every one believes that this province will keep well abreast any of the others in the race for material progress and prosperity. We are not by any means the spoiled child of the Dominion. While numerically the weakest in numbers yet the statistics as yearly published in the Trade and Navigation returns attest our superiority both as exports and imports over provinces that have been "spoon-feed" by a paternal government. Much yet remains to be done by the Federal government in connection with our harbors and navigable rivers, public buildings and the administration of the public lands owned by the present government within the province. If only true to ourselves we shall also prove true citizens to the Dominion in insisting that in its distribution of public monies and favors, British Columbia shall receive its just and equitable quota. That and nothing more will be "all the earth" we shall ask for.

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

Concerning the rumor that is going the rounds of the press in the east anent Sir JOHN's resignation of the premiership the Toronto Telegram observes that "the generally accepted opinion is that Sir JOHN will hold on to office as long as he can and that he has no desire to lay down the reins. His health is not of the best, to be sure; but this reason for retiring might have been put forward with equal force any time within the last ten years. It would be a serious blow to the Conservative party if Sir JOHN withdrew now. When the question is asked, what would the party do without Sir JOHN to lead it, nobody seems able to answer. It would be a bad state of affairs and no mistake, particularly as a general election must come on in the course of a year or so. It would not be like Sir JOHN to throw up the sponge at a critical time like the present unless he were really forced to do it by his growing infirmities. His own health is really of much more importance to him than the welfare of the Conservative party. It has often been said to Sir JOHN that he had failed to bring to the front any man who was clearly competent to take his place in the leadership, his policy rather being to keep all possible rivals in the background. Until the Chieftain himself makes some sign of resigning rumors to this effect may be taken for what they are worth, be it much or little. One effect they have is to set people thinking what would the Conservative party do if it lost its shepherd?

CANADIAN TRADE.

Mr. ALEX. WOOD, of Winnipeg, who was lately appointed agent general for Canada in the Australian colonies has issued a pamphlet dealing with the trade of Canada. Mr. WOOD's mission and the object of his pamphlet is to make known to the merchants and manufacturers of Canada the class of goods that our people could supply and that are wanted in the Australian colonies. His business, as he states, will be "to bring the Canadian producer and Australian importer together, to let the one know the wants of the other, to show the Australian buyers what the Canadian can sell, to advise the Canadian producer as to the style and character of goods suitable, or which can be made suitable, to the Australian trade, to give such advice or opinion on the commercial standing of the firms proposing to do business as may be desired, so far as local knowledge may enable him; thus to assist and increase the ability of the Canadian dealer to compete for the trade and to do so with no more than the ordinary commercial risk." He shows that while our total exports in 1885 were $89,298,361, only $433,717 went to Australia, of which only $165,393 represents manufactured goods. In the same year the exports of the United States to the same market were $10,534,138, and those of Great Britain the year previous $134,194,000. The total imports of the Australian Colonies are over $250,000,000 per annum, and of this Canada should have a far larger share than she has had in the past.

There can be no doubt on the part of Canadians generally that trade between the two counties should be fostered in every way possible for it is well known that the market offered at home is a limited one. The opening up of such a foreign trade as the Australasian Colonies should give us will, in a measure, test the problem of whether Canada with her present tariff can fairly compete in a neutral market with those in other countries who have the advantage of untaxed raw materials, fuel and machinery. Many contend that our fiscal policy is such as would also injuriously affect our trade with Australia in the purchase of their goods as return cargoes.

The government of Canada will doubtless so regulate the customs tariff as will enable the Dominion to expand its connections with every country. On that point therefore the manufacturer, the shipper and the importer will be treated as the exigencies of the circumstance may demand.

TROUBLED FRANCE.

France at present is in a very unsettled state. The recent extraordinary conduct of the government indicates great uneasiness on its part. Had the government felt itself secure there would have been no attempt at expelling the representative princes of the Bourbon and Bonapartists functions. It is because of a sense of insecurity; it is because that the friends of each are supposed to be active in the interest of their respective dynasties, that the government have found it necessary to take steps to exclude both Royalists and Imperialists from French territory. But there are other indications of uneasiness than that which has been exhibited by the expulsion of the Bourbons and the Bonapartists. General Boulanger, who is now at the head of the French army, has been unusually active, and many hint of the army possibly taking once more the control of the government. The Republic of France has enjoyed a long period of peace, but it has kept up an enormous military establishment. It has armed an immense number of the population. It has imposed burdens upon the people scarcely inferior to those it would be called upon to bear during a period of war. The expenditure has been enormous. The revenues, although very great, are not equal to the public requirements. Loan has succeeded loan, the public debt is rapidly increasing, and it is certain that this condition of things cannot long endure. France no doubt has long desired to regain possession of Alsace and Lorraine, but the opportunity has not arisen. Germany has remained at peace with her neighbors, and has thereby been able to keep her hands free for a desperate struggle with France, should France force it upon her. A general disarmament in Europe would be an immense relief to the whole continent. Hundreds of thousands of men in the prime of life are kept in idleness, and are a burden upon those who labor. The productive power of the continent is enormously diminished; wealth grows but slowly, and what is most necessary to do is that which in all probability will be done by-and-by of necessity.

THE RECONSTRUCTED SAINT.

Saint David is troubled in spirit this morning, and has resurrected the "obscure evening contemporary" style of insolence. The reference to EDGAR balm, in the presence of the Rt. Hon. Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD and Hon. THOS. WHITE, and before the immense audiences which greeted those two statesmen, has wounded the pride of the bumptious editor. The galled jade winces, and her resentment must find vent in some direction. But he should not forget that the Knight of Earnscliff is fully informed as to the efficacy of EDGAR's treatment of British Columbia politicians, and can read character like an open book. It would, indeed, be unfortunate for our province, if Canadian statesmen formed their impressions of our people from such men as the reconstructed editor of the Colonist.

MY LADY'S MONEY.

BY WILKIE COLLINS.

An Episode in the Life of a Young Girl.

Hardyman was all complaisance. He smiled and patted his horse's neck. "To-morrow, then," he said. "My compliments, and I will call in the afternoon. Let me see; Miss Pink lives at—" He waited, as if he expected Isabel to assist his treacherous memory once more. She hesitated again. Hardyman looked round at his groom. The groom could find out the address, even if he did not happen to know it already. Besides, there was the little row of houses visible at the farther end of the road. Isabel pointed to the villas, as a necessary concession to good manners, before the groom could anticipate her. "My aunt lives there, sir, at the house called The Lawn."

"Ah! to be sure," said Hardyman. "I oughtn't to have wanted reminding; but I have so many things to think of at the farm. And I am afraid I must be getting old; my memory isn't as good as it was. I am so glad to have seen you, Miss Isabel. You and your aunt must come and look at my horses. Do you like horses? Are you fond of riding? I have a quiet roan mare that is used to carrying ladies; she would be just the thing for you. Did I beg you to give my best compliments to your aunt? Yes! How well you are looking! our air here agrees with you. I hope I haven't kept you standing too long! I didn't think of it in the pleasure of meeting you. Good-by, Miss Isabel—good-by till to-morrow."

He took off his hat to Isabel, nodded to Moody, and pursued his way to the farm.

Isabel looked at her companion. His eyes were still on the ground. Pale, silent, motionless, he waited by her like a dog, until she gave the signal of walking on again toward the house.

"You are not angry with me for speaking to Mr. Hardyman?" she asked, anxiously.

He lifted his head at the sound of her voice. "Angry with you, my dear! Why should I be angry?"

"You seem so changed, Robert, since we met Mr. Hardyman. I couldn't help speaking to him, could I?"

"Certainly not."

They moved on towards the villa. Isabel was still uneasy. There was something in Moody's silent submission to all that she said and all that she did which pained and humiliated her. "You're not jealous?" she said, smiling timidly.

He tried to speak lightly, on his side. "I have no time to be jealous while I have your affairs to look after," he answered.

She pressed his arm tenderly. "Never fear, Robert, that new friends will make me forget the best and dearest friend who is now at my side." She paused, and looked up at him with a compassionate fondness that was very pretty to see. "I can keep out of the way to-morrow when Mr. Hardyman calls," she said. "It is my aunt he is coming to see, not me."

It was generously meant. But while her mind was only occupied with the present time, Moody's mind was looking into the future. He was learning the hard lesson of self-sacrifice already. "Do what you think right," he said, quietly; "don't think of me."

They reached the gate of the villa. He held out his hand to say good-by.

"Won't you come in?" she asked. "Do come in."

"Not now, my dear. I must get back to London as soon as I can. There is some more work to be done for you, and the sooner I do it the better."

He heard his excuse without heeding it.

"You are not like yourself, Robert," she said. "Why is it? What are you thinking of?"

He was thinking of the bright blush that overspread her face, when Hardyman first spoke to her; he was thinking of the invitation to her to see the stud farm, and to ride the roan mare; he was thinking of the utterly powerless position in which he stood toward Isabel and toward the highly born gentleman who admired her. But he kept his doubts and fears to himself. "The train won't wait for me," he said, and held out his hand once more.

She was not only perplexed, she was really distressed. "Don't take leave of me in that cold way!" she pleaded. Her eyes dropped before his, and her lips trembled a little. "Give me a kiss, Robert, at parting." She said those bold words softly and sadly, out of the depth of her pity for him. He started; his face brightened suddenly; his sinking hope rose again. In another moment the change came; in another moment he understood her. As he touched her cheek with his lips he turned pale again. "Don't quite forget me," he said, in low, faltering tones, and left her.

Miss Pink met Isabel in the hall. Refreshed by unbroken repose, the ex-schoolmistress was in the happiest frame of mind for the reception of her niece's news.

Informed that Moody had traveled to South Morden to personally report the progress of the inquiries, Miss Pink highly approved of him as a substitute for Mr. Troy. "Mr. Moody, as a banker's son, is a gentleman by birth," she remarked; "he has condescended in becoming Lady Lydiard's steward. What I saw of him, when he came here with you, prepossessed me in his favor. He has my confidence, Isabel, as well as yours; he is in every respect a superior person to Mr. Troy. Did you meet any friends, my dear, when you were out walking?"

The answer to this question produced a species of transformation in Miss Pink. The ragtaggery rank-worship of her nature feasted, so to speak, on Hardyman's message. She looked taller and younger than usual; she was all smiles and sweetness. "At last, Isabel, you have seen birth and breeding under their right aspect," she said. "In the society of Lady Lydiard you cannot possibly have formed correct ideas of the English aristocracy. Observe Mr. Hardyman, when he does me the honor to call to-morrow, and you will see the difference."

"Mr. Hardyman is your visitor, aunt, not mine. I was going to ask you to let me remain up stairs in my room."

Miss Pink was unaffectedly shocked. "This is what you learn at Lady Lydiard's," she observed. "No, Isabel, your absence would be a breach of good manners; I cannot possibly permit it. You will be present to receive our distinguished friend with me. And mind this," added Miss Pink, in her most impressive manner, "if Mr. Hardyman should by any chance ask why you have left Lady Lydiard, not one word about those disgraceful circumstances which connect you with the loss of the bank note! I should sink into the earth if the smallest hint of what has really happened should reach Mr. Hardyman's ears. My child, I stand towards you in the place of your lamented mother. I have the right to command your silence on this horrible subject, and I do imperatively command it."

In these words foolish Miss Pink sowed the seed for the harvest of trouble that was soon to come.

CHAPTER XVI.

Paying his court to the ex-schoolmistress on the next day, Hardyman made such excellent use of his opportunities that the visit to the stud farm took place on the day after. His own carriage was placed at the disposal of Isabel and her aunt, and his own sister was present to confer special distinction on the reception of Miss Pink.

In a country like England, which annually suspends the sitting of its legislature in honor of a horse race, it is only natural and proper that the comfort of the horses should be the first object of consideration at a stud farm. Nine-tenths of the land at Hardyman's farm were devoted, in one way or another, to the noble quadruped with the low forehead and the long nose. Poor humanity was satisfied with second rate and third rate accommodation. The ornamental grounds, very poorly laid out, were also very limited in extent; and as for the dwelling house, it was literally a cottage. A parlor and a kitchen, a smoking room, a bedroom and a spare chamber for a friend, all scantily furnished, sufficed for the modest wants of the owner of the property, if you wished to feast your eyes on luxury you went to the stables.

The stud farm being described, the introduction of Hardyman's sister follows in due course.

The Hon. Lavinia Hardyman was, as all persons in society know, married rather late in life to Gen. Drumblade. It is saying a great deal, but it is not saying too much, to describe Mrs. Drumblade as the most mischievous woman of her age in all England. Scandal was the breath of her life; to place people in false positions, to divulge secrets and destroy characters, to undermine friendships and aggravate enmities—these were the sources of enjoyment from which this dangerous woman drew the inexhaustible fund of good spirits that made her a brilliant light in the social sphere. She was one of the privileged sinners of modern society. The worst mischief that she could work was ascribed to her "exuberant vitality." She had that ready familiarity of manner which is (in her class) so rarely discovered to be insolence in disguise. Her power of easy self-assertion found people ready to accept her on her own terms wherever she went. She was one of those big, overpowering women, with blunt manners, voluble tongues and goggle eyes, who carry everything before them. The highest society modestly considered itself in danger of being dull in the absence of Mrs. Drumblade. Even Hardyman himself—who saw as little of her as possible, whose frankly straightforward nature recoiled by instinct from contact with his sister—could think of no fitter person to make Miss Pink's reception agreeable to her while he was devoting his own attentions to her niece. Mrs. Drumblade accepted the position thus offered with the most amiable readiness. In her own private mind she placed an interpretation on her brother's motives which did him the grossest injustice. She believed that Hardyman's designs on Isabel contemplated the most profligate result. To assist this purpose, while the girl's nearest relative was supposed to be taking care of her, was Mrs. Drumblade's idea of "fun." Her worst enemy admitted that the Honorable Lavinia had redeeming qualities, and owned that a keen sense of humor was one of her merits.

Was Miss Pink a likely person to resist the fascinations of Mrs. Drumblade? Alas for the ex-schoolmistress! Before she had been five minutes at the farm Hardyman's sister had fished for her, caught her, landed her. Poor Miss Pink!

Mrs. Drumblade could assume a grave dignity of manner when the occasion called for it. She was grave, she was dignified, when Hardyman performed the ceremonies of introduction. She could not say she was charmed to meet Miss Pink—the ordinary slang of society was not for Miss Pink's ears—he would say she felt this introduction as a privilege. It was so seldom one met with persons of trained intellect in society. Mrs. Drumblade was already informed of Miss Pink's earlier triumphs in the instruction of youth. Mrs. Drumblade had not been blessed with children herself; but she had nephews and nieces, and she was anxious about their education, especially the nieces. What a sweet, modest girl Miss Isabel was! The fondest wish she could form for her nieces would be that they should resemble Miss Isabel when they grew up. The question was as to the best method of education. She would own that she had selfish motives in becoming acquainted with Miss Pink. They were at the farm, no doubt, to see Alfred's horses. Mrs. Drumblade did not understand horses; her interest was in the question of education. She might even confess that she had accepted Alfred's invitation in the hope of hearing Miss Pink's views. There would be opportunities, she trusted, for a little instructive conversation on that subject. It was, perhaps, ridiculous to talk, at her age, of feeling awe of a mere Miss Pink's pupil, and yet exactly expressed the nature of the agitation which was then in her mind. In these feelings she was winning her way with the utmost nicety. Mrs. Drumblade wound the net of flattery round and round Miss Pink, until her hold on that innocent lady was, in every sense of the word, secure. Before half the horses had been passed under review Hardyman and Isabel were out of sight, and Mrs. Drumblade and Miss Pink were lost in the intricacies of the stables. "Excessively stupid of me. We had better go back, and establish ourselves comfortably in the parlor. When my brother misses us he and your charming niece will return to look for us in the cottage." Under cover of this arrangement the separation became complete. Miss Pink held forth on education to Mrs. Drumblade in the parlor, while Hardyman and Isabel were on their way to a paddock at the farthest limits of the property.

"I am afraid you are getting a little tired," said Hardyman. "Won't you take my arm?"

Isabel was on her guard; she had not forgotten what Lady Lydiard had said to her. "No, thank you, Mr. Hardyman; I am a better walker than you think."

Hardyman continued the conversation in his blunt, resolute way. "I wonder whether you will believe me," he asked, "if I tell you that this is one of the happiest days of my life?"

"I should think you were always happy," Isabel cautiously replied, "having such a pretty place to live in as this."

Hardyman met that answer with one of his quietly positive denials. "A man is never happy by himself," he said. "He is happy with a companion. For instance, I am happy with you."

Isabel stopped and looked back. Hardyman's language was becoming a little too explicit. "Surely we have lost Mrs. Drumblade and my aunt?" she said. "I don't see them anywhere."

"You will see them directly; they are only a long way behind." With this assurance he returned, in his own obstinate way, to his one object in view. "Miss Isabel, I want to ask you a question. I'm not a ladies' man. I speak my mind plainly to everybody—woman included. Do you like being here today?"

Isabel's gravity was not proof against this very downright question. "I should be hard to please," she said, laughing, "if I didn't enjoy my visit to the farm."

Hardyman pushed steadily forward through the obstacle of the farm to the question of the farm's master. "You like being here?" he repeated. "Do you like me?"

This was serious. Isabel drew back a little and looked at him. He waited with the most impenetrable gravity for her reply.

"I think you can hardly expect me to answer that question," she said.

"Why not?"

"Our acquaintance has been a very short one, Mr. Hardyman. And if you are so good as to forget the difference between us, I think I ought to remember it."

"What difference?"

"The difference in rank."

Hardyman suddenly stood still, and emphasized his next words by digging his stick into the grass.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Professor Stamford, the English Edison, has discovered a new substance which promises to become a popular article of commerce. "Algine," a residuum of macerated fucus (sea-tang), combines the qualities of a mordant, an esculent, and a superlative adhesive. It fixes a variety of colors used by cotton-dyers. In certain combinations it is as nutritious as grape-sugar, while in one of its forms its adhesiveness exceeds that of gum-arabic not less than twenty-six times.—Cor. Chicago Times.

The Queerest Thing in Salt Lake.

"I noticed an odd thing in Salt Lake City," said a real estate man who has just returned from a trip to the west. "Real estate out there is sold by the rod. Country places are not described as containing so many acres, but as so many rods square. The same thing is true of the city lots. They are not described by feet frontage and depth, but by rods. This, to me, a Chicagoan, was more difficult to become accustomed to than the plurality of wives."—Chicago Herald.

DR. VANMONCISCAR, THE WELL-KNOWN SPECIALIST, Proprietor & Consulting Physician of the Only Private Dispensary on the Pacific Coast, now permanently located at 132, 134, Third Street, Portland, Or.

DR. VANMONCISCAR has made the treatment of Private Diseases of Men a special study and practice for many years. Over 3000 cases treated yearly. Recent cases of private diseases cured in a short time. Ulcers, Humors and Blotches on Face or body cured without giving Mercury or other Poisons. Mercury is the curse of the human race. Your children will suffer from its effects. Avoid it as you would avoid any deadly Drug, and use no more. These diseases are being cured at this Dispensary without Mercury.

DR. VANMONCISCAR is a graduate of a regular Medical College, is well known over the United States and Canada by Thousands of Old and Young Men he has Cured, and it is a well known fact that for years he has confined himself to the study and treatment of Sexual and Chronic Diseases, thus giving him advantages few possess. Dr. Vanmonciscar advertises himself particularly to those who have already tried various pretenders and remedies from whom they have received no benefit, and who, in fact, have done them more harm than good. Medicine, like all other sciences, is progressing, and every year shows proof of its advances. By a combination of remedies of great curative power, Dr. Vanmonciscar has arranged his treatment that it will afford not only immediate relief, but permanent cures.

—Ice cream freezers at E. G. Prior's Government street.

—A picnic, given by a number of Victoria nimrods, will be held at Langford Lake to-morrow.

—Ice cream in quantities to suit, delivered in any part of the city by Young Bros., New England Bakery.

—The George E. Starr brought freight for: Viola & Costa, 3 cases of eggs; John Parker, 900 sheep.

—Assembly Hall is being rapidly pushed forward to completion for the forthcoming ball Friday night.

—Rev. A. B. Banks, of Seattle, will preach to-morrow in the Baptist Church, morning and evening.

—The public schools of the city will reopen after the midsummer holidays on Monday next, 2nd August.

—Mr. Geo. P. Colby, the spiritualistic lecturer, holds forth to-morrow night at Harmony Hall, at 7:30.

—Pendray & Co.'s Toilet Soaps, Oatmeal, Cocoanut, Oil, Glycerine, and Perfection Bouquet, are not to be surpassed anywhere.

—T. J. Jones, L.D.S., has removed his dental rooms over the new Bank of British Columbia, corner of Government and Fort streets. Telephone Call No. 507.*

—"I wish those big statesmen would not refer to Edgar balm so much, especially when I'm on the stage."—D. W. H.

—Mrs. E. J. Miller will re-open her classes in painting and drawing, July 27th, in room over Shears & Page's dry goods store, Government street.

—The Vancouver News says: All the railroad employees now engaged at Port Moody will shortly be transferred to the former city. Wait till the trains roll in.

—The new electric light will shortly shine, and in slang parlance "those young men who do the statue act at night" had better use a little discretion and change their base of operations.

—By the king bolt of a wagon coming out, the horse hitched to a trap took to his heels and made a spirited runaway up Fort street last night, but no damage was done.

—It is rumored on the streets to-day that the Alaskan, twin ship to the Olympian, a magnificent steel steamer, has been purchased by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

—The Seattle Reds have received by express their new uniforms, recently ordered from Philadelphia. The stockings and belts are maroon color and the caps black and maroon, shirts and pants white.

—The Indians of Cape Flattery captured a large whale off shore there a few days ago. About 70 canoes assisted in towing the monster ashore. It was an event in Makahdom.

—F. C. Innes & Co., Real Estate Brokers, and Financial Agents, Vancouver, B. C., attend promptly to all enquiries about the terminal city; Free Reading Room for use of strangers arriving in Vancouver.

—The steamer Eliza Anderson will next Tuesday evening commence running between Seattle and Vancouver, B. C., in opposition to the Evangel. Capt. Tom Wright will command the craft and she will make two trips a week between Seattle and the C. P. terminus.

—Savory & Co., having a large stock of pure apple cider, made solely from Victoria fruit, are offering it by the cask cheap. Special rates to hotels and restaurants; a rare chance to those wishing to bottle. Orders can be left at Bossi & Giesselmann's, corner Yates and Broad streets.

Hall & Quackenbush, Vancouver, B. C., have the most complete list of business and suburban properties for sale at the terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Price and terms to suit all parties. Inquiries by mail promptly answered. References.

—Owing to the indefatigable efforts of the members of the committee, the success of the Horticultural and Industrial exhibition, so far as exhibits are concerned, is assured. It only remains now for the lovers of the beautiful to make it a success financially.*

—The civic buildings for the city of Vancouver will be erected on lots 11, 12, 13 and 14, in block 3 of the eighty-five acres, nearly opposite the Sunnyside Hotel. Two sites were offered by Mr. D. Oppenheimer, and this one was selected by a committee of the council.

So popular are the manufactures of Messrs. Curtis's & Harvey's that unscrupulous persons have imitated their gunpowder canisters and labels used by the firm for upwards of 50 years. Recent cases in Germany of infringements of their rights in this repect were restrained under heavy penalities.

—All the wounded at the explosion on board the Queen at Nanaimo, will recover. They are still in the hospital and are being carefully attended to. The coal dust is believed to have exploded by concussion, a very slight blow being sufficient to set it off when the air is fully charged.

—The men working along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway have had their wages increased 25 cents per day. Those formerly receiving $1.50 are now paid $1.75; those paid $2 are now receiving $2.25. There is a fair demand for labor, which, with the increase, is due in a large measure to the exodus of laborers to Washington Territory to work on the Cascade branch of the N. P.

—"Vox Populi's" letter anent the Lieut.-Governorship cannot be inserted, as the writer's name is not given. It is to be hoped Sir John will make every possible enquiry as the fitness and suitability of the many candidates named for the position. We agree with "Vox Populi" that the selection of Senator Nelson would give universal satisfaction to British Columbians. The gift, however, is purely one of Sir John's own, and in rendering a decision, he will doubtless carefully weigh the matter and its consequences.

THE REGATTA.

A special feature of the regatta on Thursday will be the torchlight procession and illuminations on the Arm at 9 o'clock at night. The boats will carry Chinese lanterns, while fireworks will add to the beauty of the scene. Three bands and glee clubs will contribute the music and altogether the closing features of the celebration promise to be one of the finest displays ever seen in Victoria. During the regatta Sir John and Lady Macdonald will be guests of Admiral Sir Culme-Seymour on his steam launch.

THE C. A. R.

Sailing of the Queen of the Pacific To-day.—A Full List of Passengers.

The Queen of the Pacific arrived this morning with the largest number of passengers which ever left the Sound on one steamer. A great number were Grand Army men bound for the G. A. R. celebration to be held next week in San Francisco, for which celebration 'Frisco has been gorgeously decorated, or in the words of a late despatch from that city which says, red, white and blue bunting hides all the city from view. Gorgeous representations of Grand Army badges and other insignia are seen in all directions. Streamers and flags stretch from one side of the street to the other. The big hotels, society buildings and business houses are all becomingly adorned. Wherever one turns bright colors are seen.

The fare from Sound ports and return is $26.65 which is within reach of all. The number of ladies on board was surprisingly large. The already large crowd of passengers were augmented by passengers from this port, and with their numerous friends on the wharf to see them off and say good-bye the steamer presented a gay sight and everybody was in the best of spirits apparently. The following were on board from this port: Mrs. Bushby and child, R. C. Davison, A. R. Scott, J. F. Campbell, G. Farron, Miss M. A. Harris, D. Harris, G. B. Holbrook, G. H. Bailey, Mrs. R. Probert and family, Mrs. S. Aikin, Miss M. Johnston, Geo. Denny, Mrs. Fisher, Miss L. Gaig, D. C. Linsday, Mrs. D. C. Linsday, Miss F. Linsday, J. Brady, J. Ross, Mrs. R. Wingard, J. J. Southgate, Mrs. Broderick and daughter, Col. W. T. Saunders and wife, R. H. Simond, Wm. Graves, A. Monatt, W. Craib, J. G. Meek, Mrs. E. Wayne and boy, J. B. Smith and wife, J. A. Smith, Miss F. Dickinson.

ENFORCING THE BY-LAWS.

The police have entered into a crusade against all citizens who place obstructions on the streets. At the police court this morning there were seven cases against parties who had been guilty of infractions of the street by-laws. J. W. Carey was summoned for violating the sanitary by-law, but the hearing was adjourned. The charges against Frank Saforade and Aaron Lewis, the latter for obstructing the sidewalk by exposing goods for sale, were withdrawn on payment of $2 each as costs. The cases against David Green and Henry Cathcart, were adjourned, and Wm. D. Carroll, was dismissed. Ah Buck Buck sawed wood on the street, and was cautioned not to do so again. On Monday all the butchers of the city will appear on summonses issued against them for exposing meat on the sidewalks, and some of the cabmen will be asked to explain why they double up on the stand on Government street. The council should take a hand in and prohibit all cabs from standing on the center of our principal thoroughfare. The police mean to strictly enforce the street by-laws, of which the merchants and business men are advised to take notice, and in the language of legal writ—"govern themselves accordingly."

OPPENHEIMER BROS' BUILDING.

In response to the advertisement in our columns the following tenders have been received by Mr. T. C. Sorby, architect, for the erection of a brick store for Messrs. Oppenheimer Bros., at Vancouver. D. G. Gray, Vancouver, B. C., $5,100; Laurence T. Waite, Vancouver, B. C., $4,2[illegible]; Geo. Fraser and H. G. Bollson, Vancouver, B. C., $3,690; Jas. M. Fox, Vancouver, B. C., $3,600; H. A. Bell, Vancouver, B. C., $3,600; Jas. Baxter, Vancouver, B. C., $3,520; T. L. Twiford, Vancouver, B. C., $3,2[illegible]; R. Dewar, Vancouver, B. C., $2,975; R. T. Sims, Vancouver, B. C., $2,[illegible]; Hill & Conley, Victoria, B. C., $2,868; W. F. Fullerton, Victoria, B. C., $2,780; J. J. Moore, Vancouver, B. C. $2,725. The building will be of a thoroughly substantial character, perfectly plain, but well adapted for their purposes. A large vault and iron shutters to doors and windows will insure protection from fire.

WORKINGMEN'S MEETING.

The meeting called for last night at Philharmonic hall to consider the question of presenting an address to Sir John A. Macdonald, from the workingmen of the city, was attended by about forty or fifty. Councillor W. A. Robertson was appointed chairman and Mr. A. Dods secretary. The chairman stated that the object of the meeting was to pass a resolution of confidence in the Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, and present him with an address, but as it was desirable that the meeting should be a thoroughly representative one it would be better to adjourn until Tuesday evening next. Accordingly, on motion of Mr. Eli Harrison, the meeting adjourned.

THEATRICAL.

Jeffreys-Lewis, the talented and artistic actress, will commence a season in Portland during August, at the conclusion of which she will visit Victoria and give us a round of society plays, which should draw well, considering that we have had so much light trash and opera. The lady is very feeble and something may turn up at the eleventh hour and frustrate present intentions. Manager Beede informs us that his next attraction will be Joseph R. Grismer, on the 3rd of September. The last of that month Minnie Hauk will appear here, and other leading artists are being arranged for.

CHANGE OF TIME.

The North Pacific will arrive to-morrow morning about 9 o'clock and lay over till 6 o'clock Monday morning, at which hour she will sail for Sound points, after which, in conjunction with the Starr, regular trips will be made, arriving here between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon and sailing the next morning at 6 o'clock. Travelers, and the public, can govern themselves accordingly.

UP THE ARM.

The Arm fairly swarmed with boats last night. There were pleasure-seekers out for a quiet evening's enjoyment; there was a barge full of young gents and ladies with music, who adjourned to Dodd's dancing pavilion and danced; there were young men practising in skiffs and shells for the forthcoming regatta, and there were sailors from the navy doing likewise, all of which tended to make the quiet and placid Arm merry.

A HEAVY PURCHASE.

It is reported in the city that the Hon M. H. Cochrane, Senator, during his recent visit to Victoria purchased a band of one thousand horses from Mr. Barnard, M. P. They will be driven across the mountains to the Senator's ranches in the Northwest.

NOTICE.

Parties desirous of visiting Cowichan Lake can obtain the necessary means of conveyance by communicating with Jas. Kerr of Somenos, either by letter or telegraph; charges moderate.

Among the many superior qualities of Messrs. Curtis's & Harvey's celebrated DIAMOND GRAIN powder might be mentioned; GREAT PROPELLING POWER, SAFETY IN USE, CLEANLINESS, REGULARITY OF EFFECT. These merits are appreciated not only by the sportsman in the field, but by victorious teams at international rifle matches at Wimbledon and Creedmoor, New York, who used Curtis & Harvey's DIAMOND exclusively.

WHAT SCIENCE SAYS.

The "Fearful and Wonderful" Mechanism of the Human System Graphically Portrayed.

[In the editorial columns of the New York Analyst, H. Lassing, M. D., editor, writes the following beautiful description of the laboratories of the human system. We think we have never read a finer or more trustworthy one.]

"Man is the greatest of all chemical laboratories. Magnify the smallest cell of the body and what a factory is spread before the eyes, countless chambers in which are globes of air, masses of solid matter, globules of dying liquid; a flash comes and the whole is consumed and needful heat is carried into every part of the system. Electrical forces also generate and are conveyed to the brain, the muscles and the various nerve centers.

In another set of a million chambers we see various gasses and vapors. By chemical action these are changed and purified in the lungs and the skin. The blood we often say is a great living river. In its current are masses which the air-in the lungs did not affect; blocks of chalk; slabs of tartar; pieces of bone-ash; strings of albumen; drops of molasses, and lines of alcohol. How are these waste masses disposed of? Begin were you will in this great stream you must come to the purifying places of the system. Here is all activity and an invisible force reaches out into the stream, seizes and carries this mass of waste into vast trenches, thence into a smaller reservoir, and finally into a larger reservoir, which regularly discharges its contents.

This separation of lime, uric acid and other waste material from the blood without robbing it of a particle of the life fluid, passes human comprehension. In health this blood, purifying process is carried on without our knowledge. The organs in which it is done are faithful servants whose work is silent as long as health remains.

"People strangely wait until pain strikes a nerve before they will realize that they have any trouble. They do not know that pain concerns chiefly the exterior not the interior of the body. A certain set of nerves connect these blood-purifying organs with the brain. They may not gnaw and bite as does the tooth-ache or a scratch, but they regularly, silently report. When these organs are failing these nerves indicate it by drawing the blood from the face and cheek, leaving the lip and eye blanched, by sending uric acid poison into the smallest veins, the skin then becoming gray, yellow or brown. They also prevent the purification of the blood in the lungs and cause pulmonary difficulties, weariness and pain. Who enjoys perfect health, especially in this land where we burn the candle in one mass? The athlete breaks down in the race; the editor falls at his desk; the merchant succumbs in his counting-room. These events should not have been unexpected for nature long ago hung out her "lanterns of alarm." When the "accident" finally comes, its fatal effect is seen in a hundred forms; either as congestion, chronic weakness, as wrong action, as variable appetite, as head troubles, as palpitation and irregularities of the heart, as premature decay, as dryness and harshness of the skin causing the hair to drop out or turn gray, as apoplexy, as paralysis, as general debility, blood poisoning, etc.

"Put no faith then in the wiseacre who says there is no danger as long as there is no pain. Put no faith in the physician, whoever he may be, who says it is a mere cold or a slight indisposition. He knows little, if any, more than you do about it. He can neither see nor examine these organs and depends entirely upon experimental tests, that you can make as well as he.

"If the output is discolored or muddy, if it contains albumen, lymph, crystals, sweet or morbid matter, is red with escaped blood, or roily with gravel, mucus and froth, something is wrong and disease and death are not far away.

"These organs which we have described thus at length, because they are really the most important ones in the human system, the ones in which a large majority of human ailments originate and are sustained, are the kidneys. They have not been much discussed in public because it is conceded that the profession has little known power over them. What is wanted for such organs is a simple medicine, which can do no harm to the most delicate but must be of the greatest benefit to the afflicted. Such a remedy, tried and proved by many thousands all over the world is Warner's safe cure. With those in whom disease is deep seated it is the only specific. For those in whom the seeds are sown and the beginning of illness started it as unfailing reliance. It may be recommended to the well to prevent sickness and the sick to prevent death. With its aid the great filtering engines of the system keep on in their silent work without interruption; without it they get out of gear and then disease and death open the door and cross the threshold."

Such writings ought not only to please but to carry conviction that what Editor Lassing, M. D., so high an authority—says is true, and that his counsel is worthy the attention and heed of all prudent, right-minded people.

PROVINCIAL APPOINTMENTS.

His Honor the Lieut.-Governor has been pleased to make the following appointments:

Edwin Johnson and Charles Wilson of Victoria, Esqs., Barrister-at-Law, to be Commissioners under and to carry out the provisions of "An act respecting the consolidation of the statute laws of British Columbia," passed at the last session of the Legislature.

George Christie Tunstall, Esq., G. C., and S. M., to be Registrar of the County Court of Yale, to be holden at Granite City.

Charles J. Johnson, of Vancouver, Esq., to be Deputy Registrar of the County Court of New Westminster, holden at Vancouver.

William J. McGuigan, Esq., M. D., of Vancouver, to be a Coroner for that portion of the Electoral District of New Westminster known as the polling division of Burrard Inlet.

William Piercy, Esq., Inspector of the Northwest Mounted Police, to be a Justice of the Peace in and for the Electoral District of Kootenay.

GOOD RUN.

It is satisfactory to know that the run of salmon in the Fraser at present is very good, the boats averaging about 125 fish each for last night. When the steamer passed this morning the Wellington cannery had 500 fish on the wharf.

Another and equally as reliable an authority says that the run is still far below the average. At Coquitlam last night the average take of twelve boats was 72 fish, which is considered very small. There is a well-grounded impression with many in the trade that there will be a very small catch.

MAINTAINING ITS RECORD.

The track of the Northern Pacific Railway, and its rolling stock, allied with that of the O. R. & N. Co's, is in such excellent condition that a lightning express is to be put on the route between Portland and St. Paul, reducing the running time between the two terminal cities by 21 hours. This favorite route is being largely patronized at present, the overland travel being the heaviest known on it since it was opened for traffic. Tourists and land hunters crowd each outgoing and incoming train.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. R. Bell and Mrs. Bell, of the naval yard at Esquimalt, will leave for England to-morrow. They have resided in this province since '58, and will carry away with them the best wishes of all their acquaintances.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Maynard arrived last night from England.

Mr. F. Brown, telegraph operator at Yale, is recovering from a serious illness.

Mr. Geo. Schmith, Beceley Bay, is in the city.

Sir Hector Langevin has recovered from his recent illness and is now in Ottawa.

Hon. John Carling, Minister of Agriculture, last week was engaged in selecting a site for the Dominion experimental farm between Kingston and Ottawa. It is understood that the vicinity of the capital will be preferred.

Mr. S. McCausig, ex-M. P. for the county of Prince Edward, is announced as a Conservative candidate for the county at the next general election.

Mr. J. S. Meek, barrister, who for some time resided in Port Moody, but lately of Portland, visited Victoria this morning en route to San Francisco and the South, where he intends to reside for the future and practice his profession.

J. F. Cambell, Geo. Farron and George Denny left on the Queen to-day to attend their scholastic duties at Santa Clara College.

Mr. J. Ross, contractor of St. Catharines, Ont., sailed to-day on the Queen.

Mr. Geo. Wise, Coroner, Yale, is in the city.

Mr. R. Y. Ellis, of Toronto, is at the Driard.

Thos. F. Ryan, Oregon City, is in town.

Miss E. M. Bryant, New Haven, Conn., is a guest at the Driard.

Messrs. H. Muhlenberg and Isaac Hiester, Reading, Penn.; William A. Rice and S. D. Mason, St. Paul; A. Wienholt, England; and George P. Smith, Philadelphia, are registered at the Driard.

The Starr's passengers: J A Anderson, George Marr, Brownell, Knoll, Miss Knoll, S D Mason and wife, Welsh, Miller, J Schlink, Mrs Worth, G P Smith, L Devine, C C Bartlett, Ellis, J Heister, H A Muhlenberg, L F Ryan and wife, Bowman, Mrs Dick, Leatherdale, A Cummings, Rev A B Banks, Jennings, Mrs Lawrence, Danziger, Mrs Gason, F Bartlett, Dr S C Devay, Coughlane.

JUMPED OVERBOARD.

A man, believed to be a Frenchman, who had more money than brains, was observed pacing up and down, in a melancholy mood, on the deck of the Queen of the Pacific this forenoon, while she lay at the outer wharf. Suddenly he threw a large amount of money, variously estimated at from $300 to $10,000, on the deck at the feet of a lady passenger, and, with the remark, "I'll have no more use for that," jumped to the bulwarks and then into the sea. A sailor, who saw the suicidal act, leaped after him, and with considerable difficulty succeeded in attaching a line to the body of the unresisting idiot, who was fished out without much further trouble. He was supposed to be suffering from temporary insanity, and was locked in his state-room, not much the worse for the bath. The name of the man was not ascertained.

RUN AWAY ACCIDENT.

Mr. James Haggan, of the West Road, Saanich, was seriously injured a few days ago, by a run away team. At first he was supposed to have been fatally injured, but we are glad to state has so far recovered as to give his friends strong hopes of his speedy recovery. One of the animals had the tendons of its leg severed; it was thrown down and dragged by its mate a considerable distance.

THE LOTTA.

Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., owners of the Lotta, have generously given the use of the boat and a barge to the captain and crew, to convey visitors to the regatta up and down the Arm on Thursday next. A great many people can be safely carried each trip, and doubtless this and other craft will do a rushing business, as every man, woman and child in the city will be there.

The sportsman in purchasing his powder should be specially careful in seeing that he gets from his dealer the GENUINE PACKAGES or Messrs. Curtis's & Harvey. Very inferior powder is often sold at apparently cheap prices under the name of DIAMOND GRAIN, but Messrs. Curtis's & Harvey are the original manufacturers and proprietors of the justly celebrated DIAMOND GRAIN POWDER.

ROYAL
